Alaska-Yukon Exposition Notes.

A reproduction in natural colored sugar of the state house at Honolulu, Hawaii, standing 25 feet high, is to be seen in the Hawaiian building at the Seattle World's Fair.

A chunk of coal weighing 2,700 pounds is an exhibit in the Mines building at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition. It is from a Washington State mine.

So comprehensive is the exhibit of the Fisheries Department of the National Government at the Seattle World's Fair that the only thing left in the sea and not shown is McGinty, in Davey Jones' Locker.

"One pleasing feature about your Exposition," said an Atlanta, Georgia, newspaper man in speaking of the Seattle World's Fair, "is that there is no extortion permitted. There are prices to meet everyone's pocket-book."

Accomplete history of our country may be gathered in a short space of time from the papers and curios on exhibit in the State Department at the Seattle World's Fair.

Seven different car lines, a steamboat line and automobiles are employed in carrying the crowds to and from the Seattle World's Fair.

The spiritual and intellectual development of the Great Northwest is as fully exploited by the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition as is the commercial and industrial growth.

TWO BALL GAMES LAST WEEK

Miss Mary Bell Basham, of Stephensport, is the guest of Mrs. Gus Shellman. Marvin Beard went to Owensboro Saturday to accompany his wife home Monday. Mrs. Beard had spent two weeks with her sister, Mrs. E. B. English.

Miss Marj Payne, of Bewleyville, is the guest of Mrs. Jas. Witt. W. S. Ball, of Frankfort, came home for the Fourth.

Mrs. Sallie Richardson and her sister, Mrs. Schreiber, of New Jersey, are visiting Mrs. P. M. Beard.

Mrs. D. R. Murray and Mrs. M. H. Beard have returned home from a visit to relatives in Cloverport.

Herbert Beard went to Louisville Monday to attend a meeting of the State Fair Board.

Miss Mary Walls, daughter of Lee Walls, fell from a horse Friday and broke her arm between the wrist and elbow. Miss Walls is an accomplished rider and fell only because the saddle turned.

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Gross, of Bewleyville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Witt Sunday.

Miss Katie Laughter, Miss Agnes McGill and Lummie McGill, of Louisville, returned to the city yesterday after a few days with friends here.

Why don't you delight the housewife by furnishing her pure and wholesome food? Your grocer keeps it. It's the Lewisport flour.

Gus Shellman has resigned as manager of the ball team. Morris Buckner Kincheol has been appointed in his stead.

There were two good games of ball here Friday and Saturday between Hardinsburg and Owensboro. The first game was won by 3 to 1 in favor of the Owensboro Cocon-Colas. The second was 8 to 7 in favor of the home team.

Golden Wedding Of Capt. And Mrs. J. W. Carlton.

An event of much interest in Hancock county and also Cloverport was the celebration of the 50th anniversary of Captain and Mrs. J. W. Carlton's marriage, which was held at the residence of their daughter, Mrs. J. S. Adair, in Hawesville, Tuesday afternoon. Many were in attendance with hearty congratulations and many more at a distance sent loving messages and tokens of esteem.

Captain Carlton was born in King and Queen county, Va., December 23, 1859, his family moving from Virginia to Hawesville on his first birthday, December 23, 1859. His grandfather served in the Revolutionary war, and for service was voted 5,000 acres of land in Virginia, a part of which is still held by the Carlton family. His father served in the war of 1812 and Captain Carlton himself served in the Confederate army, and is the proud possessor of a Confederate Cross of Honor.

Mrs. J. W. Carlton was born in Hancock county, Ky., Sept. 2, 1837, and was reared near Hawesville. She is a descendant of the Hensley and Kincaid families, who were prominent in the settlement of Kentucky with Daniel Boone and other pioneers, and is a niece of the famous river commander, John W. Cannon, who once owned the steamer, Robert E. Lee and was also born and reared near Hawesville.

Captain and Mrs. Carlton were married at her family home three miles above Hawesville, June 29, 1859, the occasion being a double wedding, Capt. James Carlton, a brother of J. W. Carlton, and Mrs. Lucetta Powell, an aunt of Mrs. Carlton, being the other participants.

After the war Captain Cannon commanded some of the finest steamers on the southern waters until about five years ago. Captain and Mrs. Carlton spent their winters in Missouri while engaged in his work and their summers in Hawesville, among familiar scenes and with old friends of a life time who knew them best and appreciate them for their beautiful lives which have been an inspiration to old and young, and their sunny natures that have endeared them to all who knew them. Captain Carlton has one living sister,

DEATH REMOVES IRVINGTON CITIZEN

Mr. James F. Claycomb Passes Away After a Prolonged Illness.

WIFE AND CHILDREN SURVIVE.

Once more the grim monster, death, has lifted our community and taken from our midst a most honored and respected citizen, Mr. James F. Claycomb, who died at his home on last Monday morning, June 28, at 3:30 o'clock, after a prolonged illness. The news of his death filled every heart with deepest grief and sadness, and the announcement came as a surprise to the whole town and entire community, although he had been told by the doctors that he couldn't get well.

Mr. Claycomb was engaged in the insurance business and he always was a man of his word and the people had confidence in him. He was a consistent member of the Baptist church at this place.

The remains were taken to Walnut Grove on Tuesday morning for burial. Mr. W. C. Gordon, New Orleans, La., T. W. Gayer, pastor of his church here and was largely attended as was also the interment at the graveyard near the church. As a token of esteem and admiration the grave was covered with many floral designs.

A wife and three and two children by his first wife are left to mourn his loss besides a host of friends and relatives.

Mrs. George Vickers, of Owensboro, Ky., and Mrs. Carlton has two brothers, John and Joseph Lindsay, of Chickasha, Okla., and one sister, Mrs. J. W. Porter, of Owensboro, Ky.

The union has been blessed with eight children, six of whom are living, Charles H. Carlton, of Chickasha, Okla.; Mrs. J. S. Adair, of Hawesville, Ky.; Mrs. J. L. Williams, of Memphis, Tenn.; J. W. Carlton, Jr., Alexandria, La.; W. C. Gordon, New Orleans, La.; J. B. Carlton, Monroe, La. The following grandchildren: Mrs. J. L. Miller, Cruger, Miss; Mrs. J. N. Alsop, Owensboro, Ky.; Hawes, Emily, Joe, and Sue Carlton, of Hawesville; J. L. Miller, Jr., of Cruger, Miss., is a great-grandchild.

The decorations were in gold and for refreshments the ices, punch and cake served, carried out the same golden color scheme. The table was filled with beautiful and costly golden presents which were much admired and appreciated not only for their value which was great, but for the love which inspired the gifts. A large number of gifts were gold coins of every denomination, making literally a golden shower.

Mrs. Bettie Brasher and son, Joe and Mrs. and Mrs. Nat Alsop and Mrs. Porter, of Daviess county, attended—Hancock Courier.

Card of Thanks.

We have delighted publishing a card of thanks expressive of our gratitude to our neighbors and friends of Stephensport for their constant and unflinching care and attention to our loved one, Mrs. R. S. Skillman, during her late and last illness. We are convinced that we have gained nothing by delay, as we still feel incapable of expressing our appreciation of the services rendered. Husband, Brother and Sister, July 3, 1909.

Tortured on a Horse

"For ten years I couldn't ride a horse without being in torture from piles," writes L. S. Napier, of Rugless, Ky., "when all doctors and other remedies failed, Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured me." Infamously for Piles, Burns, Sores, Cuts, Boils, Fever-Sores, Eczema, Salt-Rheum, Corns, 25c. Guaranteed by Severs Drug Co.

The Whirlwind Campaign

The day crowds for the three days speaking in the county last week were small except at Custer, where a full house greeted the speakers on Saturday afternoon. Dr. Shearin, of Lexington, who met the appointments, is a pleasing speaker, carrying conviction with well chosen words. He points out our failures under the old school law with his cumbersome lot of 25,000 trustees, a fifth of whom were illiterate. He quotes convincing figures showing the success of states about us that have lately adopted a system like our own. He emphasizes local taxation, and an education beyond that given by the public schools.

His contact with our people at Union Star, Stephensport, New Bethel, McQuady, Westview and Custer will do much for the spread of the true public school gospel. No one who came under the spell of his burning earnestness will fail to tell his neighbor, who in turn will pass it on to others. There was no speaking at Garfield on account of a conflict with a local preaching date. The choir at Stephensport, McQuady, Westview and Custer rendered appreciated song services.

Supt. Sims, of Covington, Ky., and Rev. Cline, of Hardinsburg, also addressed the people at Custer. There were a few short talks given by county teachers at the Custer meeting, all full of the new spirit that is possessing the school people of the state.

IF WOMEN ONLY KNEW

What A Heap Of Happiness It Would Bring To Cloverport Homes.

Hard to do housework with an aching back.

Brings you hours of misery at leisure or at work.

If women only knew the cause—that Backache pains come from sick kidneys.

Wouldn't you have much needless wear.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.

Many residents of this vicinity endorse them.

Mrs. Lizette Bartley, Main & Cross Sts., Elizabethtown, Ky., says: "I was a sufferer for over three years from pains across my back, which were so severe after any exertion as to completely unfit me for work. My feet and ankles became so badly swollen that I could not get on my shoes at night and it pained me severely to stand. I had intense headaches and was often so dizzy that I did not dare walk upon the street. The secretions from my kidneys were distressing in passage. My brother who had been cured of kidney trouble by Doan's Kidney Pills, advised me to give them a trial and I procured a box. They gave me great relief and I continued using them until the pains in my back disappeared, the secretions from my kidneys became natural and the soreness in my limbs left. I was soon a well woman and give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McIlwain Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Open For Business

The Irvington Mill and Elevator, which has been shut down for several weeks for repairs, is now under a full head of steam and ready for business. A new Engine has been installed and a complete overhauling of all the machinery has been made, making it one of the best and most thoroughly equipped mills in the State. A new platform scale has also been added to the mill making it most convenient for handling the farmers' wheat.

Mr. W. J. Piggett, the proprietor, is to be congratulated on his enterprise and his thorough business methods in conducting a first-class mill. He is in close touch with the farmers, pays them the highest market price for their wheat and furnishes them with the best flour. He is thoroughly reliable and his highest ambition is to please his customers.

Sees Mother Grow Young.

"It would be hard to overstate the wonderful change in my mother since she began to use Electric Bitters," writes Mrs. W. L. Gilpatrick, of Danforth, Me. "Although past 70 she seems really to be growing young again. She suffered untold misery from dyspepsia for 30 years. At last she could neither eat, drink nor sleep. Doctors gave her up and all remedies failed till Electric Bitters worked such wonders for her health." They invigorate all vital organs, cure Liver and stomach troubles, induce sleep, impart strength and appetite. Only 50c at Severs Drug Co.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE

Has Large Attendance—Much Interest—Visitors Galore—Instructors Make Telling Addresses.

FINE PROGRAM FOR THE WEEK.

Hardinsburg, July 8. (Special).—The county teachers' institute met at ten o'clock Monday morning, in organizing elected Miss Nora Harrison, secretary, and proceeded at once to get down to business.

The enrollment was large, specially so when it is remembered. The teachers who are in attendance at the State Normal are excused from attending.

Upon physicians' certificates the following are excused because of their own illness or that of other members of the family: P. T. Noel, Mrs. M. P. Payne, J. K. Leslie, Andrew Driskill and Mary Jo Mattingly.

The work of the first day was of a strong and interesting holding character. Each instructor made telling addresses at the beginning showing in attractive manner the exalted duties and boundless and sacred responsibilities of the teacher.

Dr. Corson's addresses make one want to live and work; Prof. Martin's show to live long, healthily and cleanly; Miss Smith's measure up to her high standard of the past, giving life and light to children just as it enters the schoolroom from the hallowed precinct of home.

The teachers handle readily their subjects at their hours for discussion. Visitors through the meetings and teachers are promptly in their places, all drawn by the worth and beauty of the work as it is presented.

The music is a pleasant feature. It was furnished Tuesday by the Baptist choir.

In addition to the regular work of county teachers and teachers, Mrs. Tueda Robinson and teachers, C. Pease, of Kingswood, will give the closing address this afternoon. Miss Hannah Beeri will recite. Godfrey Haswell furnished the teachers with orangeade Tuesday and otherwise remembered.

Miss Katie Eskridge and her pupils have the thanks of every visitor for the pleasing recital timed for the first evening of the institute.

Dr. Matter's institute at the M. E. church South tonight will attract a crowded house.

Dr. Corson on Thursday evening will deliver a free lecture at the Court House.

FINE WHEAT BAGS.

Farmers who will contract their wheat to be loaned sacks FREE OF CHARGE in which to ship same. Consult us about prices before sending elsewhere. Ballard & Ballard Co., Louisville, Ky.

In Honor of Miss Hermann.

Mrs. Chas. D. Hook entertained Friday evening from 5 to 7 in honor of Miss Ruth Hermann, of Tell City, Ind., who has been the guest of Misses Ruby Haynes and Elizabeth Moorman Hook. The house was very beautifully decorated in ferns and sweet peas. Those who assisted Mrs. Hook in receiving were Mrs. B. M. Currie and Miss Jane Smith. The other guests present were: Eleanor, Martha and Emily Reid, Louise Lewis, Louise Nichols, Jane Lightfoot, Addie and Mary McGavock, Beatrice Fague, Lillian Tague, Eleanor Burk, Forrest and Lenard Weatherholt, Jimmie Fitch, Helen Kingsbury, Mary and Eudale Currie, Isabella, Burn, Tula Babage, Lida May English, Mary Owen Elice, Lillian Crume, Mary Joe and Agnita Mattingly and Mary Pate.

Died at Custer.

Mrs. Esie Trent, widow of the late Peyton Trent, died at her home near Custer last Thursday. She was nearly 75 years old.

Carl Trent, the 8 year old son of Hayes Trent, died Tuesday, of last week, with typhoid fever.

CLOVERPORT, KY., WEDNESDAY, JULY 7, 1909.

Kentucky Editors Have a Glorious Meeting--Business Transacted on the Side. Sam Underwood, of Hopkinsville, Elected President.

Estill Springs, Ky., July 2, 1909. (Editorial Correspondence)—Beautiful Estill! The members of the Kentucky Press Association arrived here Monday evening and to say there has been something doing every moment is putting it in a mild way. Everybody had their energy stirred up for a good time and not a guest was present who failed to get a big slice of fun.

Business was simply brought in on the side, merely to elect Mr. Sam Underwood, president and Dan Bowman, secretary and treasurer. A. D. Miller was elected vice president and Clarence Woods, orator, Tuesday morning the Association was welcomed to Estill Springs by Mr. Robert Friend. His address was splendid and the cordial spirit of it rippled through the crowd all week. A. Y. Ford, M. H. Thatcher and J. W. Newman, of Louisville, were here Thursday, as were booked on the program.

There was considerable dashing around in the debate: Resolved That State-Wide Prohibition Would be a Good Thing for Kentucky, C. E. Woods, affirmative, T. M. Gilmore, negative. The whiskey lawyer was drowned by the editors and before many hours he was like a fish out of water.

Mrs. Breckinridge, of Lexington, lighted her candle before the Association Thursday morning and the editors were much pleased with the light she threw on school suffrage. There was a large attendance, a delightful set of people and everyone left Friday night reluctantly.

Our Court House at Hardinsburg is a thing of beauty and a joy forever. It never appeared to better advantage than it did last Monday. The Circuit Court room was beautifully decorated for the Teachers' Institute and there were present as handsome and intelligent body of teachers as any county in the State can turn out. The exercises were inspiring and uplifting. Dr. Corson's talk Monday afternoon was one of the best we ever heard in an Institute. No doubt his surroundings were an inspiration. How we are progressing in educational matters! And there's no one prouder of it than this editor.

Judge Moorman has the endorsement of all good citizens for his work in renovating the court house and yard. Men feel more like behaving themselves and acting like men and not like brutes in a clean house. It took courage and back bone for the young Judge to do what he has done, but to our mind no greater work could have been done for the general good and uplift of the county. It is to be hoped that his successor will carry on the good work.

Lee Walls has proved himself a good, painstaking officer, prompt in all his dealings with the public and always on hand when duty calls, ready and willing to serve you. Strictly temperate and a square man. He would make an ideal circuit clerk and the Democrats will make no mistake if they nominate him.

Judge W. E. Settle was at Hardinsburg Monday. The judge is a candidate for re-election. No finer man ever sat on the bench than Judge Settle. An able judge, a gentle gentleman, broad-minded and liberal; this district will make no mistake in re-electing him.

Democrats, Independents and conservative Republicans all over the county see in Vic Robertson a clean sweep for victory if nominated at the coming Democratic Mass Convention.

Everybody wants a clean ticket for the Democrats and likewise one for the Republicans. The first one in the field will have the advantage.

The thing to do in this county is to raise more stuff for the kitchen and less for the trusts.

It is the duty of all good citizens to lend a hand in nominating good men for the offices.

WOMAN'S RIGHTS IN NORWAY.

Miss Gula Krog, a Pioneer, Tells What Her Sex Has Gained.

Miss Gula Krog, a prominent Norwegian delegate to the quincentennial meeting of the National Council of Women held in Toronto this month, said recently to a New York Sun reporter:

"The women of Norway have had municipal suffrage and have been eligible for all municipal offices for the last nine years and next fall will exercise their rights as full voters for the first time. Though we speak of it as universal suffrage, we don't really have the same rights to the ballot as the men have at present.

"Before 1808 the men of Norway had suffrage with the taxation qualification. On that date they got universal suffrage. Next fall the women of Norway will begin to vote just about on the same terms that the men did before 1808, with the advantage that married women can vote on the taxes paid by their husbands and unmarried women on those paid by their parents. That is better than the men started with, you see.

"The women of Norway have served on juries for upward of five years. Often a woman is elected as foreman. We serve in all sorts of cases, just as the men do. They look upon us women of Norway as being interested in the welfare of our country as well as their own. We have no children's court as yet. In its place we have a body of officers, men and women, elected by the municipal authorities to look after the welfare of the children.

"There may be women elected to parliament next fall, but I hardly expect it. You see, with us the Conservative party is very much stronger than the Liberals or the Social Democrats. Our ablest women, those who might be elected to parliament, belong to the Liberals. I hardly expect them to get in.

"One thing we who have worked for suffrage in Norway have learned—that a good many women held back, refused us their assistance, but now that the work is accomplished they come forward with enthusiasm and are eager to take part in it. I believe the same will be found to be true here in the United States."

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

A cup of cold water before retiring and a cup of hot water in the morning before breakfast will like magic as a cure for indigestion.

Almond meal is preferred by some women to soap and acts as a pleasing alternative to soap in the bath. It softens, cleanses and whitens the skin.

The most easily digested foods which contain the greatest amount of nourishment and are free from acids and starches are those best adapted to the child's needs.

A glass of warm water before breakfast is a tonic for the whole system. If the complexion is in need of improvement try squeezing half a lemon into the water just before drinking.

Have as nice towels as you can afford, but pay less attention to the quality than to their cleanliness. There is little use of careful scrubbing if a half soiled towel is used for drying.

Since almost invariably indicate a weak condition of the system, the external applications relieve and better the lids. A poultice for the purpose is made from four grains white cassia and five centigrams each of white precipitate and oil of birch. This is applied at night. A drop of belladonna on a lump of sugar is an old fashioned remedy that is taken when symptoms of a sty are first manifested. At the same time the lids are to be bathed in warm oil flower water.

A skin whitening preparation that can be easily made at home is in the proportion of two tablespoonfuls of oatmeal, a half tablespoonful of powdered borax and a half cup of water. Let the mixture stand three days, strain and add a half ounce of alcohol. The addition of the alcohol prevents the souring which is the drawback to so many oatmeal preparations. If preferred, instead of using all oatmeal it can be mixed with half this bulk of almond meal. Either of these washes makes the skin feel soft and smooth if rubbed on the hands or face after washing.

The biggest problem of all to the woman who would keep her good looks is the matter of wrinkles. A generation ago she gave up without a fight, but since the coming of massage and simple devices of all sorts she dares no longer indulge in such disfigurement as long as it may be prevented. One woman's simple cure-all is the steam bath. She dabs her face with hot water until it is heated thoroughly, then applies the cream fresh from the dairy, letting it dry on her face. She puts on more cream, massaging it into the wrinkles particularly. It is then washed with warm water and lightly powdered.

Nail Polish in Tubes.

The latest toilet novelty is a nail polish which comes in a tube and can be pressed out like artists' pigments. The polish itself is of a consistency between a cream and a liquid, easy to put on.

The case is a neat little one, nickel plated, with a top that pulls off, and furnished with an ejector to force out the enamel.

Delicately Put.

"The first day out was perfectly lovely," said the young lady just back from abroad. "The water was as smooth as glass, and it was simply gorgeous. But the second day was rough and—decidedly disagreeable."—Everybody's Magazine.

I Cannot Praise Peru-na Highly Enough for the Good it Has Done Me.

MRS. JOHN HOPP.

MRS. JOHN HOPP, Webster Ave., Glendale, L. I., N. Y., writes: "I have been suffering for the past ten years with many symptoms incident to my age, also catarrh and indigestion. I was weak and discouraged, had no ambition, could not sleep at night, and lost greatly in weight. "I tried other remedies, but with no success, until I commenced to take Peru-na. I now feel better in every respect, can sleep well, and have gained in weight. I cannot praise Peru-na highly enough for the good it has done me."

"If any women are suffering as I did, I would advise them to try Peru-na and convince themselves. Peru-na has done me good. I know by my experience that it is worth its weight in gold to any one who needs it. "I also took Mannin, for constipation, in connection with Peru-na, and I found it helped me where other laxatives failed."

New Well of Catarrh.

Miss Malissa Jolley, Parmele, N. C., writes: "I have been taking your Peru-na, and can say that I am well of the catarrh. "I thank you for your kindness and your advice."

Why don't you delight the housewife by furnishing her pure and wholesome flour? Your grocer keeps it. It's the Lewisport flour.

Aunt Millie Pate will soon be 92 and is as spry as a kitten. Corps are very good now, but there has been so much rain there is likely to be a drought. There is a large fruit crop this year and we hear people will make good use of it.

Advocating Nomination
 of Hon. Ben Johnson.

The press of the State has been busy during the past few months advocating the nomination of the Hon. Ben Johnson by the Democratic party for Governor. These endorsements by the press must certainly be gratifying to Mr. Johnson, because they came unsought by him. Men who know Ben Johnson know that he is not a man to "blow his own horn," he is not a man who seeks office, but rather a man whom office seeks. He received the position he now holds not because he sought a nomination so much as that it was the unanimous voice of the people of his district calling upon him to be their candidate. He has truly graced the seat which he now fills and has made a Congressman of whom not only the Fourth district may justly feel proud, but the entire State as well. In testimony of the fact that Kentucky is proud of her noble son is the fact that he is receiving endorsements from all parts of the State for the position of Chief Executive of the State. Present appearances indicate that his nomination by his party, for that office in 1911 is almost a certainty. He is looked to by the Democrats of the State as the man who can place Kentucky in the Democratic column and redeem the State.—News Leader.

Why Men's Hats Have a Bow.
 A bow is always to be found on the left side of a man's hat. This is a survival of the old days when hats were costly articles. In order to protect them against the left being blown away in stormy weather a cord or ribbon was fastened around the crown, with ends hanging so that they could be fastened to part of the attire or could be grasped by the hand. The ends fell on the left side, of course, as the left hand is more often disengaged than the right. When not required it was usual for the ends to be tied in a bow. The bow became smaller and smaller, but it still remained and is likely to do so as long as men wear hats.

A Delightful Peat Trip

The following jolly party left Sunday morning on the Steamer Tell City for Owensboro, arriving there at 12:30 and returning the same evening on 8:15 train. It was an ideal trip and every one enjoyed it to the fullest extent. Mr. and Mrs. Marion Weatherholt and two sons, Forrest and Leonard, Mrs. G. L. Cruise and daughter Lillian and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Roff.

The Servant Question.

In England the proportion of men to women indoor servants is as one to three or four. In France the reverse is the case, the ratio being unknown, the one femme de chambre being lady's maid as well as housemaid. The housework—sweeping, dusting, etc.—mainly falls upon the men servants. One element entailing much extra work for servants in England is absent in a French house. This is the staying guest, the succession of visitors. Outside private hotels and in the handsome flats of fashionable quarters there is, indeed, no room in Parisian households for friends. The words "dine and sleep" or "week end" visits have not found their way into French domestic life. Here have dine and sleep or week end guests yet lessome French institutions. It is easy thus to understand why three or four servants suffice in France, while in England a dozen would be needed for people of similar means and position, and where three or four maids are kept in England nearly a general servant is kept in France.

BABY'S ITCHING WAS UNCLEABLE

Girl of Six Months had Fearful Attack of Eczema—Spread All Over Her Face and Eyes Begon Swell—Scratched Till Blood Came—Relieved in a Night and

CURED BY CUTICURA AFTER LONG SUFFERING

"When my little girl was six months old I noticed small red spots on her right cheek. I did not pay any attention to them but finally the spots grew so large that I sent for a doctor who said it was ringworm. He prescribed a treatment which I used for two weeks, but instead of helping the eruption, it only made it worse. I then went to a baby said it was eczema. He also gave me an ointment which did not help either. The eruption spread all over the face and the eyes began to swell. I was almost blind. The itching grew intolerable. I had to prevent her scratching. The cheeks were covered with blood and it was a terrible sight to see. One night I said out from twenty to thirty dollars without relief."

"One of my friends told me of the Cuticura Remedies and I sent at once for a set which I used the next evening. The next morning the baby's face was all white instead of red and you can imagine how surprised I was. I cannot find words enough to praise Cuticura and I do not know how to express how much I have enjoyed it. I have become of my baby only for one of them. I used Cuticura Remedies and I never saw any other soap. I always recommend them whenever I have a picture of my little girl. I will send you one of the pictures which she had taken just after she was healed. Mrs. F. B. Gumbin, Sheldahl, Ia., July 13, 1908."

A NEGLECTED DETAIL.
 An Old Custom That Should Be Systematically Broken Up.
 There's one much neglected detail in the general routine of kitchen work—so few housekeepers ever take it into consideration at all—the rinsing of dishes. They make the demand of their servants that dishes be rinsed, and they even provide the second large dishpan or war for the very purpose. Purchasing they extract a promise from the lately hired domestic or their confidence in a tried and true one bridges the difficulty.
 But have you happened to see this done, this rinsing, in some well regulated household?
 The extra pan is used or the waiter—how do you call it—is called into service—but to what purpose when every dish as it is washed is turned right side down to drain, an old, old fashioned custom which seems to have frayed fastened itself upon the average household assistant.
 Does the rinsing not take place eventually? Oh, my, yes! The scalding water is religiously poured over the dishes, cleansing the undersides of them and reheating them so that they are perfectly easy to polish. The conscience of the promiser is easy to that, but it remains for the housekeeper to suggest the upturning of her dishes.

A Skeleton in Every Closet.

The expression "There is a skeleton in every closet" is said to have its origin in the fact that a soldier once wrote to his mother, who complained of her unhelpfulness, to have some one come for him by some one who he had no cares or troubles. At last the mother found a woman who seemed to have no troubles, but when she told her business the woman took her to a closet containing a skeleton and said: "Madam, I try to keep my troubles to myself, but every night I am compelled by my husband to kiss this skeleton, who was once his rival. Think you, then, I can be happy?"

Alphabetical Time.

An English firm, Higgins & Dodd, finding that there were twelve letters in their name, placed a clock on their door with the letters on its face instead of numbers. They waited anxiously for days, weeks, hoping for some return, but not a soul took notice of the clock. At last, amid excitement behind the office window, a man was seen to halt on the street and gaze at the clock, puzzled.
 Slowly he came to the door, entered and drawled, "Say, is it half past Higgins or a quarter to Dodd?"—T. P.'s Weekly.

Her Bargain.

Wide-Oh, this is awful! These curtains I got at the bargain sale don't match our furniture. Hubby—Return 'em. Wife—What about our cat—she's been slaughtered in his way—London Chronicle.

Sleeping Car Trips.

"I have noticed one thing about sleeping car journeys," he remarked, "and that is that I always sleep better coming home than I did going away. Whatever may be the cause, such is the case. Sometimes leaving home a man has worries or thoughts that won't let him rest easily, and by the time he finishes his work in the place he went to his mind has swung around all right again. It doesn't make the slightest difference whether I have an upper or a lower berth when I make the trip away. Then I can sleep. On the contrary, I can sleep anywhere on the way home."—New York Sun.

The Hero.

"So Bilgiana has written a historical novel." "Yes," answered Miss Cayenne, "who is the hero of the book?" "The man who has undertaken to publish it."—Washington Star.

Polly of the Circus

CHAPTER IX

DOUGLAS was turning toward the house when the Widow Willoughby came through the wicker gate to the left of the parsonage, carrying a basket of peaches, which Mandy was following by Miss Perkins with a bucket of pickles, which Mandy promptly placed on top of Mrs. Elverson's ice cream. The women exclaimed that they had come to put the finishing touches to the decorations. If anything was needed to increase Mandy's dislike of the widow it was this announcement.

Mrs. Willoughby was greatly worried because her children had not been home since the afternoon school session. Upon hearing that they were with Polly she plainly showed her displeasure, and Douglas dispatched Mandy for them. She saw that her husband's distrust of Polly had annoyed him, and she was about to apologize when two of the deacons arrived on the scene, also carrying baskets and parcels for the social.

Strong led the way. He always led the way and always told Elverson what to think. They had been talking excitedly as they neared the parsonage, for Strong disapproved of the recent changes which the pastor had made in the church service. He and Douglas had clashed more than once since the baseball argument, and the deacon had realized more and more that he had met a will quite as strong as his own. His father being the parson to his way of thinking was making him irritable and taking his mind from his luncheon.

"Can you beat that?" he would exclaim as he turned away from some disagreement with Douglas, his temper ruffled for the day.

Polly was utterly unconscious of the unfriendly glances cast in her direction as she came running into the garden leading the widow, two deacons, and a little longer. She was making up a new game, she said, and needed Willis and Jennie for the set.

"The idea of a full grown parson coming off to play children's games with a circus girl!"

"She isn't such a child," asserted Julia.

"It's enough to make folks talk," put in Mrs. Willoughby, with a sly look at the deacons.

"And me awaiting to give him Mrs. Elverson's message," piped Elverson.

"The church here all this in silence so long as that girl was sick," snapped Miss Perkins. "But now she's perfectly well and still hanging on. No wonder folks are talking."

"Who's talking?" thundered Strong.

"Didn't you know?" simpered Mrs. Willoughby, not knowing herself nor caring so long as the suspicion grew.

"Know what?" yelled the excited deacon. Mrs. Willoughby floundered. Miss Perkins rushed into the breach.

"Well, if I was deacon of this church it seems to me I'd know something about what's going on in it."

"What is going on?" shrieked the new deaconess.

"The women looked at him pityingly, exchanged knowing glances, then

"We don't like some of the things that are going on here, and I want to talk to you about 'em."

"Very well, but see if you can't talk in a lower key."

"Never mind about the key!" shouted Strong angrily.

"But I don't!" Something in his eyes made the deacon lower his voice.

"We want to know how much longer that girl is going to stay here."

"Indeed! And why?" The color was leaving Douglas's face and his jaw was becoming very square.

"Because she's been here long enough."

"I don't agree with you there."

"Well, it don't make no difference whether you do or not. She's got to go."

"Go?" echoed Douglas.

"Yes, she's got to. We've made up our minds to that."

"And who do you mean by 'we'?"

"The members of this congregation," replied Strong impatiently.

"Am I to understand that you are speaking for them?" There was a deep frown between the young pastor's eyes. He was beginning to be perplexed.

"Yes, and as deacon of this church,"

"Then as deacon of this church you tell the congregation for me that that is my affair."

"Your affair?" shouted Strong, "when that girl is here under the church's roof, it's the church's business."

"It is one of our duties," said Douglas, "to see that the church and its members are kept pure and free from anything that would bring reproach upon it."

"Here are my guests and not guests of the church. Remember that, please."

There was an embarrassing silence. The deacons recalled that the pastor's salary was slightly in arrears. Elverson coughed nervously. Strong started.

"You keep out of this, Elverson!" he cried. "I'm running this affair, and I ain't forgettin' my duty nor the parson's."

"I shall endeavor to do my duty as I see it," answered Douglas, turning away and dismissing the matter.

"Your duty is to your church," thundered Strong.

"You're right about that, Deacon Strong," answered Douglas, wheeling about sharply, "and my duty to my church is reason enough for my acting exactly as I am doing in this case."

"Is your duty to the church the only reason you keep that girl here?"

"No; there are other reasons."

"I thought so."

"You've heard her story—you must have heard. She was left with me by an old clown who belonged in the circus where she worked. Before he died he asked me to look after her. She has no one else. I shall certainly do so."

"That was when she was hurt. She's well now and able to go back where she came from. Do you expect us to have our young folks associating with a circus girl?"

"So, that's it!" cried the pastor, with a pitying look. "You think this child is unfit for your homes because she was once in a circus. For some reason circus to you spells crime. You call yourself a Christian, Deacon Strong, and yet you insist that I send a good, innocent girl back to a life where you say is sinful. I'm ashamed of you."

"That talk about no good with me!" roared Strong. He was desperate at being accused of an un-Christian attitude.

"I ain't afraid of you to send her back to the circus. I don't care where you send her. Get her away from here; that's all."

"Not so long as she wishes to stay."

"You won't?" Strong saw that he must try a new attack. He came close to Douglas and spoke with a marked insinuation. "If you was a friend to the girl, you wouldn't want the whole congregation a-pollin' fingers at her."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that you're livin' here alone with her and it looks bad—bad for the one of our young folks at this point, and Strong, now thoroughly roused, declared that the congregation should have no further cause for gossip and went out quickly in search of food.

When Strong was gone Elverson looked at the wet faces of the women and attempted a weak apology for the pastor. "I dare say the young man was very lonely—very—before she came."

"Lonely?" snapped Miss Perkins. "Well, if he was lonely I didn't know it."

The deacon excused himself nervously and went to John Strong.

The women gathered up their belongings and retired with bland smiles to the Sunday school room, feeling that they had accomplished enough for the time being.

Strong and Elverson crossed the yard, still in search of the pastor. They turned at the sound of rattling leaves and beheld Douglas, hatless, tearing down the path. Strong called to him, but Douglas darted quickly behind the hedge. The deacon called at once another in speechless astonishment. Presently the silence was broken by the distant voice of Polly counting from one to a hundred. The secret was out! The pastor, a leader of the church, was playing hide and seek.

"Mr. Douglas!" shouted Strong when his breath had returned.

"Hush, hush!" whispered Douglas, looking over the hedge. He peeped cautiously about him, then came toward the men with a sigh of relief.

"It's all right. She has gone the other way."

"I'll be a good thing for you if she never comes back," said Strong, and Douglas's quick ear caught an unpleasant meaning in his tone.

"What's that?" the pastor asked in a low, steady voice.

"We don't like some of the things that are going on here, and I want to talk to you about 'em."

"Very well, but see if you can't talk in a lower key."

"Never mind about the key!" shouted Strong angrily.

"But I don't!" Something in his eyes made the deacon lower his voice.

"We want to know how much longer that girl is going to stay here."

"Indeed! And why?" The color was leaving Douglas's face and his jaw was becoming very square.

"Because she's been here long enough."

"I don't agree with you there."

"Well, it don't make no difference whether you do or not. She's got to go."

"Go?" echoed Douglas.

"Yes, she's got to. We've made up our minds to that."

"And who do you mean by 'we'?"

"The members of this congregation," replied Strong impatiently.

"Am I to understand that you are speaking for them?" There was a deep frown between the young pastor's eyes. He was beginning to be perplexed.

"Yes, and as deacon of this church,"

"Then as deacon of this church you tell the congregation for me that that is my affair."

"Your affair?" shouted Strong, "when that girl is here under the church's roof, it's the church's business."

"It is one of our duties," said Douglas, "to see that the church and its members are kept pure and free from anything that would bring reproach upon it."

"Here are my guests and not guests of the church. Remember that, please."

There was an embarrassing silence. The deacons recalled that the pastor's salary was slightly in arrears. Elverson coughed nervously. Strong started.

"You keep out of this, Elverson!" he cried. "I'm running this affair, and I ain't forgettin' my duty nor the parson's."

"I shall endeavor to do my duty as I see it," answered Douglas, turning away and dismissing the matter.

"Your duty is to your church," thundered Strong.

"You're right about that, Deacon Strong," answered Douglas, wheeling about sharply, "and my duty to my church is reason enough for my acting exactly as I am doing in this case."

"Is your duty to the church the only reason you keep that girl here?"

"No; there are other reasons."

"I thought so."

"You've heard her story—you must have heard. She was left with me by an old clown who belonged in the circus where she worked. Before he died he asked me to look after her. She has no one else. I shall certainly do so."

"That was when she was hurt. She's well now and able to go back where she came from. Do you expect us to have our young folks associating with a circus girl?"

"So, that's it!" cried the pastor, with a pitying look. "You think this child is unfit for your homes because she was once in a circus. For some reason circus to you spells crime. You call yourself a Christian, Deacon Strong, and yet you insist that I send a good, innocent girl back to a life where you say is sinful. I'm ashamed of you."

"That talk about no good with me!" roared Strong. He was desperate at being accused of an un-Christian attitude.

"I ain't afraid of you to send her back to the circus. I don't care where you send her. Get her away from here; that's all."

"Not so long as she wishes to stay."

"You won't?" Strong saw that he must try a new attack. He came close to Douglas and spoke with a marked insinuation. "If you was a friend to the girl, you wouldn't want the whole congregation a-pollin' fingers at her."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that you're livin' here alone with her and it looks bad—bad for the Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble presses upon the mind, discourages and lessens vitality; heavy, vigor and cheerfulness disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy.

The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root.

Including many of the thousands of testimonials received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

POLLY of the CIRCUS

"I shall go with you, my dear," said the pastor quietly, but firmly. He turned away to show that the interview was at an end. Strong followed him. Douglas pointed to the gate with a meaning not to be mistaken. "Good afternoon, deacon."

Strong hesitated. He looked at the pastor, then at the gate, then at the deacon again. "Will you go," he shouted, "but it ain't the end!" He slammed the gate behind him.

"Quite so, quite so," chirped Elverson, not having the slightest idea of what he was saying. He saw the frigid expression on the pastor's face; he coughed behind his hat and followed Strong.

CHAPTER X.

DOUGLAS dropped wearily on to the rustic bench. He sat with drooping head and unseeing eyes. He did not hear Polly as she scurried down the path, her arms filled with autumn leaves. She glanced at him, dropped the bright colored foliage and slipped quickly to the nearest tree. "One, two, three for Mr. John!" she cried as she patted the huge brown trunk.

"Is that you, Polly?" he asked absently. "Now it's your turn to catch me," she said, lingering near the tree. The pastor was again lost in thought. "Aren't you going to play any more?" There was a shade of disappointment in her voice. She came slowly to his side.

"Sit here, Polly," he answered gravely, pointing to a place on the bench. "I want to talk to you."

"Now I've done something wrong," she pouted. She gathered up her gaily and brought them to a place near his feet, ignoring the seat at his side. "You might just as well tell me and get it over."

"You couldn't do anything wrong," he answered, looking down at her. "Oh, yes, you could, and I've done it. I can see it in your face. What is it?"

"What have you there?" he asked, trying to gain time and not knowing what to say.

"I've been playing too many petticoat games," she repeated haltingly. "What does that mean?"

"Indiscretion," he rubbed his forehead as he saw the puzzled look on her face. "Mixed up," he explained, more simply.

"Your game wasn't mixed up?" he was thinking of the one to which the widow had objected. "Is it promiscuous to catch somebody?"

"It depends upon whom you catch," he answered, with a dry, whimsical smile.

"Well, I don't catch anybody but the children," she looked up at him with serious, imploring eyes.

"Never mind, Polly. Your games aren't promiscuous," she did not hear him. She was searching for her book. "Is this what you are looking for?"

"No," cried Polly, with a flash of embarrassment. "Mandy told you."

"I've been working a long time on that," she said.

"I thought I might help you if I learned everything you told me," she answered timidly. "But I don't suppose I could."

"I can never tell you how much you help me, Polly."

"Do I?" she cried eagerly. "I can help more if you will only let me. I can teach a bigger class in Sunday school now. I got to the book of Ruth today."

"You did?" He pretended to be astonished. He was anxious to encourage her enthusiasm. "A dreamy book came into her eyes."

"Do you remember the part that you read to me the first day I came?" He nodded. He was thinking how care free they were that day. How impossible such problems as the present one would have seemed then. "I know every bit of what you read by heart. It's our next Sunday school lesson."

"So it is," she said, thinking that it would be a good idea to read it to her.

"I wonder how you would like to go away," her eyes met his in terror. "away to a great school," he added quickly, flinching from the very first hint that he had inflicted, "where there are a lot of other young ladies."

"Where are the children?" "Gone home."

"You like the children very much, don't you, Polly?" Douglas was striving for a path that might lead them to the subject that was troubling him.

"Oh, no, I don't like them; I love them," she looked at him with tender eyes.

"You're the greatest baby of all," a puzzled line came between his eyes as he studied her more closely. "And yet you're not such a child, are you, Polly? You're quite grown up—almost a young lady." He looked at her from a strange, unworldly point of view. She was all of that as she sat at his feet, yearning and slender and fair, at the turning of her seventeenth year.

HER ARMS WENT OUT BLINDLY.

"Is it a place where you would be?" She looked up at him anxiously. She wondered if his "show" was about to "move on."

"I'm afraid not," Douglas answered, smiling in spite of his heavy heart. "I wouldn't like any place without you," she said decidedly and seemed to consider the subject dismissed.

"But if it was for your good," Douglas persisted. "It could never be for my good to leave you."

"But just for a little while," he pleaded. "Would she ever understand anything?" How could he take from her the sense of security that he had purposed taking her to feel in his home?

"Not even for a moment," Polly answered, with a decided shake of her head. "But you must get ahead in your studies," he argued.

"What have you there?" he asked, trying to gain time and not knowing what to say.

"I've been playing too many petticoat games," she repeated haltingly. "What does that mean?"

AN INTELLIGENT DOG.

What a Clever Collie Did With His Master's Plaid!

The shepherds who live among the hills and on the plains of Scotland have to travel many miles a day while looking after their flocks of sheep, but they would have to travel a great deal more if they had not with them some very clever collie dogs.

These little four footed friends are so wise and clever that their masters could not do without them. To show you how clever these dogs are the following story is told of one of them.

One day a Scotch shepherd was caught in a rain storm, and when he arrived home his plaid, which he wore over his back in place of an overcoat, was quite wet through.

But he just took it off and gave it to his collie dog, and doggie at once went into another room, carrying the plaid in his mouth.

And what do you think he did with it? Well, the astonishment of an English gentleman who had followed to watch doggie went and sat on the hearth in front of a big fire, and there he held out the plaid over his paws.

And he turned it about and about in front of the fire until both sides of the plaid were quite dry. Then he took it back to his master.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

HOMEMADE ICE CREAM.

Freezes It in Least a Day Before it is

"The best ice cream is stale ice cream," said the ice cream manufacturer. "You never hear of stale from ice cream among children who have never used the homemade article. It is a queer thing that it would ruin a manufacturer to sell fresh goods, whereas if you know it is homemade and just out of the freezer you will praise it to the skies as being the superior of anything manufactured anywhere."

"If you want your homemade cream to be really good and healthy make it at least a day before you use it. Churn it hard, but not too hard, and then pack it away in salted ice until you are ready to serve it. In this way all the little particles of ice which make homemade cream so gritty and really harmful will have disappeared. The cream will sort of absorb the water that forms the ice, so to speak, consequently your cream will be frozen, not frapped. It is a daring manufacturer who risks his trade by shipping cream less than a week old. Sometimes I store my goods in ice as much as two weeks. That isn't a bit too long, either, although it takes a heap of ice."

Breaking Away From Work. Our business men ought to break away from trade exactions long before they do—ought to do so as a matter of volition and ethical judgment rather than of physical necessity. They ought to get and give more enjoyment in life. They ought to do less for self and more for others. They ought to live more in books and more in the open and less at their desks and realize better health and longer lives as a result. More and more culture in all its forms is exerting a growing influence, which must manifest itself in lessened effort along the lines of money getting and the devotion of more time on the part of our business men to the pursuits which naturally accompany fortified leisure.

Aristotle said, "The end of labor is to gain leisure," and Aristotle was a wise man. —A. Barton Hepburn in Century.

The French Academy. The French academy is one of the five academies and the most eminent constituting the Institute of France. It was founded in 1635 by Cardinal Richelieu and reorganized in 1816. It is composed of forty members, the new member elected by the remaining thirty-nine members for life after personal application and the submission of the nomination to the head of the state. It meets twice weekly and is the highest authority on everything pertaining to the sciences of the French language—to grammar, rhetoric and poetry and the publication of the French classics. The chief officer is the secretary, who has a life tenure of his position. A chair in the academy is the highest ambition of most literary Frenchmen.

Young Folks MEASURING A TREE.

How Height May Be Ascertained by the Triangle Method.

A clever boy who wanted to know the approximate height of a tree solved the problem in this manner: He got a stick and planted it in the ground and then cut it off just at the level of his eyes. Then he went out and took a look at the tree and made a rough estimate of the tree's height in his mind, and judging the same distance above the ground from the tree trunk, he planted his stick in the ground. Then he lay down on his back with his feet against the standing stick and looked at the top of the tree over his head.

If he found the top of the stick and tree did not agree he tried a new position and kept at it until he could just see the treetop over the end of the upright stick. Then all he had to do was to measure along the ground to where his eye had been when lying down, and that gave him the height of the tree.

The point about this method is that the boy and stick made a right angled triangle with his eye as base, stick or perpendicular, both of the same length, and the "line of sight" the hypotenuse or long line of the triangle. When he got into the position which enabled him to just see the treetop over the top of the stick he again had a right angled triangle with the tree as perpendicular, his eye's distance away from the trunk, the base, and the line of sight the hypotenuse. He could

FOR THE ENGAGED GIRL.

Pretty Ways of Announcing the Great Secret of Her Happiness.

Usually an engagement is announced by the young woman, writing notes to her friends, her fiancé, his friends, and her fiancée. It is becoming more and more the fashion to "break the news" to one's friends at luncheon or dinner.

This can be done in a formal way by the girl herself or her mother, but it is less embarrassing and more clever to convey the news with a unique touch.

The dessert course is a good time for the announcement. One girl had the loes served in the shape of small wedding bells. Stuck into the top was a tiny heart-shaped envelope which contained the names of the girl and her fiancé. Each name was written on a small silver paper heart joined by a silver paper arrow piercing the two.

Another girl had a tray passed at the close of the luncheon with a single red rose for each guest. Colored in the heart of the rose was a crumpled heart of white paper with the names of the engaged persons bracketed together.

A third young woman had suspended from the chandelier over the center of the table a large bomb-shaped decoration made of snowflakes. From it white ribbons were attached to the plate of each guest. When the table was being cleared for dessert each person was asked to pull her ribbon. The bomb burst, scattering red and small envelopes, which on being opened were found to contain the announcement in the shape of a luncheon.

A clever announcement at one luncheon came in the form of a telegram brought by the maid to one of the guests in the secret. When opened it was found to contain the news of the betrothal amusingly kept within the usual ten words. It was read aloud at once, creating much surprise.

Do you use an atomizer in treating Nasal Catarrh? If so you will appreciate Ely's Liquid Cream Balm, the quickest and surest remedy for this disease. In all curative properties it is identical with the solid Cream Balm, which is so famous and so successful in overcoming Catarrh, Hay Fever and Cold in the head. There is relief in the first dash of spray upon the heated sensitive air-passages. All druggists 75c., including spraying tube, or mailed by Ely Bros., 36 Warren St., New York.

Life 100,000 Years Ago. Scientists have found in a cave in Switzerland bones of men, who lived 100,000 years ago, when life was in constant danger from wild beasts. Today the danger, as shown by A. W. Brown, of Alexander, Me., is largely from deadly diseases. "If it had not been for Dr. King's New Discovery, which cured me, I could not have lived," he writes, "suffering as I did from a severe lung trouble and stubborn cough." To cure Sore Throat, Colds, Obstructed Coughs, and prevent Pneumonia, it's the best medicine on earth. 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed by Seven Days Cure. Trial bottle free.

The Intelligent Censor. Some years ago a young man of St. Petersburg, Ivan Podowski, quarreled with his sweetheart and then took his grief out of the country. About a year after he wrote to the girl asking her to "make up" and telling her if she forgave him to insert a "personal" to that effect in a St. Petersburg paper not later than a certain date. The girl was repentant, too, and she promptly got the "personal" ready, and all would have been well had it not been for the lynx eye censor, who believed it to be some sort of nihilist message and refused to allow its publication. After awhile, however, the stern official was convinced that the "personal" was harmless, and it was printed four days later. It was a little while after when the girl received word that her lover, having failed to see the message in print on the day he had set, had shot himself two days before it saw the light.

Probably Hanged. A writer in the form of a telegram of the sister of Lord Houghton, who was frequently annoyed at the guests whom her brother brought to the house.

"Do you remember, my dear," he asked her at dinner one day, "whether that famous scoundrel X. was hanged or acquitted?"

"He must have been hanged," she replied, "or you would have had him to dinner long ago."

She Will Decorate Governor's Home. To Miss Marie Irvin of Boise, Ida., has been awarded the contract to decorate and furnish the new official mansion for the governor of that state. It is one of the few contracts of the kind that have been won by women in this country. In that city there are several women who have found furnishing and decorating a profitable profession, but most of their commissions have come from women's clubs or other women's organizations. It is a line of work for which women are especially well fitted. Miss Irvin studied in art schools there and in Chicago, returning to Boise a little more than a year ago. She arranged the decorations for the last inaugural ball in Idaho, and it was her success then that led to the award of the present contract. Miss Irvin affixes at simplicity in all her work, which when attained means the best artistic expression.

A Night Rider's Raid. The worst night riders are camelot, croton oil or aloes pills. They raid you to rob you of rest. Not so with Dr. King's New Life Pills. They never distress or inconvenience, but always cleanse the system, curing Colds, Headaches, Constipation, Malaria, etc., at Seven Days Cure.

Newest in Kitchen Cabinets. A spice cabinet, new and most convenient, stands about eighteen inches high and measures ten inches across. It is fitted with five drawers, all but the lowest one being partitioned off into two. These are marked baking powder, baking soda, gluten, pepper, cloves, nutmeg, cinnamon, allspice, to show their respective contents.

Golden Horseshoes. Roman writers inform us that Commodus caused the hoofs of his horse to be gilded. Nero when he undertook short journeys was always drawn by mules that had silver shoes, and those of his wife, Poppaea, had shoes of gold. From a passage in "De Cassinis" there is reason to think that the upper part only was formed of those noble metals or that they were perhaps plated out of this alloy. When Boniface, emperor of Cassan, one of the richest princes of his time, went to Beatrix, about the year 1038, his whole train was so magnificently decorated that his horses were shod with silver. The nails were even of the same metal.

Get DeWitt's Carbolic Witch Hazel Salve when you ask for it. There are a great many imitations, but there is only one original. This salve is good for anything where a salve is needed to be used, but it is especially good for Piles. Sold by all Druggists.

His Selection. Mr. Brown and his family were standing in front of the Hons' cage. "John," said Mrs. Brown, "if those animals were to choose whom you would you save first, me or the children?" "Me," answered John without hesitation.—Everybody's Magazine.

THE GREAT PHARAOH.

Horemheb Did More For Egypt, Perhaps, Than Any Other.

Horemheb at the time of his accession was forty-five years of age, full of energy and vigor and passionately anxious to have a free hand in the carrying out of his schemes for the reorganization of the government. It was therefore with joy that in about the year 1350 B. C. he sailed up to Thebes in order to claim the crown.

Had he lived longer he might have been famous as a conqueror as well as an administrator, though old age might retard and three bones refuse their office. As it is, however, his name is written sufficiently large in the book of the world's great men, and when he died, about 1315 B. C., after a reign of some thirty-five years, he had done more for Egypt than had almost any other pharaoh. He found the country in the wildest disorder, and he left it the master of itself and ready to become once more the master of the empire which Akhnaton's doctrine of peace and good will had lost.

Under his direction the purged worship of the old gods, which for him meant only the maintenance of something proved customs, had gained the mastery over the chimerical worship of Aton. Without force or violence he substituted the practical for the visionary, and to Amen and other his grateful subjects were able to cry, "The sun of him who knew thee not has set, but he who knows thee shines; the sanctuary of him who assailed thee is overwhelmed in darkness, but the whole earth is now in light."—Arthur E. P. Weigall in Century.

Mules Sixteen Cents Pound.

The Georgetown, (Ky.) News says: "A new wrinkle of trading mules was inaugurated in this country last week when H. M. Grover purchased ten head from Fred Coffman by weight. The price paid was 16 cents per pound. The mules averaged 834 pounds, bringing $134 per head."

The Argument For The Taft Tax

Such a tax brings also Federal supervision and regulation of all corporations. This is demanded by the great number of American voters. They are weary of corporate abuses. They are alarmed by the growth of corporate power. They see the need of systematic reports, records and accounts for all corporations. The Taft plan for a 1 per cent. tax on the net income of all corporations will in the end bring Federal supervision, regulation and publicity for corporations.—Philadelphia Press.

BELLS OF THE BASTILLE.

They Are Hung in a Little Rustic Building in Paris.

The bells of the Bastille are still in Paris in a little court in Avenue d'Eylau, where they are hung in a little rustic building. There is no doubt as to their authenticity. They carry in relief their story. "These three bells were made by Louis Cheron, founder to the court, for the royal Bastille in the year 1761." Fleur-de-lis, crosses and sacred figures adorn the legend. The bells formerly were part of the clock installed by M. Sartine in 1794. In the archives de l'arsenal are all the documents relative to the work.

On July 14, 1789, the bells of the Bastille stopped the clock of the Bastille at a quarter past five in the evening. Pailloy, who demolished the prison, three days later received the order to deliver the clock to the commander of the Paris militia, who transported it to no one knows whether. After the revolution the bells were found at the foundries of Rouilly-sur-Andelle, in Eure, where, under the reign of terror, the church bells were converted into money. The proprietor of the foundry was interested in these relics and did not neglect them. He installed the three bells in his works with the movement of the clock. By this time the dial plate had disappeared and the figures which belonged to it. Some years ago the bells were transferred from the Rouilly foundry to Paris, and there they have since remained.—London Globe.
